Plans Advancing In Alumni Drive For More Books

Extensive Progress Being Made,
Says George McAteer

The book drive sponsored by the Alumni Association and the student body of Seattle College this week swings into full stride with alumni and students contacting hundreds of friends of Seattle College and Catholic education for donations of money and new and used books.

The Rev. Daniel Reidy, S.J., in charge of the drive, this week announced that all who donate $10.00 or an equivalent value in books would be enrolled on a permanent honor role of library patrons. Patrons who secure five additional patrons for the library will be registered on the honor role as "sponsors," Fr. Reidy further announced.

"Twenty or thirty years from now when Seattle College has developed into a great university, library patrons and sponsors will be proud of the help they gave the college when it was needed," said Fr. Reidy.

Persons wishing to donate books may do so by calling Prospect 1670, and stating their intentions.

The St. Vincent de Paul society has volunteered to call for the books as their part in the drive.

"Books of all kinds can be utilized," said George McAteer, chairman of the book drive committee, at the Alumni breakfast last Sunday. "Those not suitable for the library will be exchanged for others which can be utilized."

Sodalities Choose Topics For Oratorical Contest

"Papal Infallibility" is the subject that has been chosen by the men's sodality for the coming Apologetical Oratorical contest to be held on Laetare Sunday in the Nurses' Auditorium at Providence Hospital.

The young ladies sodality has chosen for its topic, "The Symbolism in Church Liturgy." Two handsome trophies have been obtained, one of which will be presented to the winner of the college division, and the other to the winner of the high school division.

Father Prange last week announced the men's sodality would meet at 11:00 a.m. in the future, instead of at 11:40.

Coming Events

February 10—College Hoopsters Meet Seattle Pacific Falcons at O'Dea Gymnasium.

February 12—"What Happened to Jones" presented at St. Joseph's School Auditorium.

February 17—Maroon plays Centralia at Garrigan Gym.

Freeley Announces Success Of Informal

The Winter Informal of Seattle College at the Olympic Hotel was a decided social as well as financial success, according to Emmet Freeley, chairman of the dance committee.

Mr. Freeley stated that there were approximately 300 couples present, and that a neat profit was realized. He also expressed his gratitude for the loyal support of the Alumni Association.

Winifred Jo Barry "A success like this is encouraging, and we are assured that there will be similar social activities in the near future," said Mr. Freeley.

College Retreat Closes With Mass and Papal Blessings

Mass Friday morning at St. Joseph's Church during which men students received Holy Communion in a body, brought to a climax the services of the annual Seattle College retreat. Following the Mass, Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament and the Papal Blessings were given by Rev. Paul O'Connor S.J., retreat master. Breakfast followed.

During the course of three days of religious exercises and reflection, Father O'Connor gave a series of discourses on a number of subjects including man's relation to himself, to his fellow men, to God; the value of man's soul and the value of things outside the soul; the necessity of a moral life; death and the last judgment; the Holy Eucharist; the Kingdoms of Satan and God; loyalty to Christ; the place of the Catholic college man in college life; closing with an exhortation to every student to strive to be an extraordinary Catholic and a leader of men.

Plans Nearing Completion For Weber College Debate

Mr. Robert J. Carmody, S.J., moderator of the Seattle College debating society recently announced that all plans for the debate with Weber College of Utah will be withheld until they are definitely completed. He stated, however, that the probable subject for the debate would be "Resolved, that the increased powers of the President should be permanent."

Weber College placed a close second in last year's Pacific Intercollegiate debate conference.

EDITORIAL

In a recent interview with Hank Bernier, the coach gave his opinion by saying that a man enters into a sport because he likes the sport and because he has personal ambitions to attain. These ambitions, he stated, go far towards the promotion of his school's reputation. And thus, he said, if the athlete does these things by taking part in different branches of school athletics, it is only fair that the student body repay these men for their unselfish devotion of time and energy by turning out in full force for any and every athletic event in which men representing the college participate. The words of Coach Bernier speak for themselves. Probably one of the main reasons why the college basketball team has not been winning its share of the games can be traced directly to the lack of interest among the students. Naturally, when a team goes out on the basketball floor and achieves great things, it can be proud of its achievements. But can it be justly proud? If that team has few or no followers, regardless of its ability, it will soon lose its reputation. So, come on, fellows, let's help make the team a winner. The players are more than doing their share. Why not do yours?

They tell me that Marge O'Neill has turned bandit. She was seen holding up a train the night of the Winter Informal.

And, shades of Shakespeare—Geis makes a sentence using the word "Aberdeen": He spat upon my Jewish g-Aberdeen.

And speaking of Aberdeen, during the game there last Saturday they repaired the basket we were shooting at, because we didn't need it.

Overheard at the C.D.A. dance last Friday night: Hasn't Jack Gallagher the most gorgeous eyes? Whoops, my deah!

* * *

And Rothstein will swear to this: While hunting for Quimby in Aberdeen, he stood in the middle of the street and hollered "Ken." Believe it or not, says Jimmy, the echo answered, "Sorry, nobody here by that name."

* * *

Now that brings up the question—why did they have to hunt for Quimby?

* * *

She: Before you came my life was just like a desert.

Morgan Boyle: Is that why you dance like a Camel?

And after watching Bernard Ouelette and Ward Smith washing dishes, I think we should send them a subscription to Good Housekeeping.

The next time Emmet Freely puts on "Stop Thief" he's going to glue the pussy-willows to the table. Congrats, Emmet.

Georgina Killkelly's blonde head was seen at the C.D.A. dance. The rest of her was there, too. So was Bob Forrestal.

Dorothy Robinson says she had the gang for dinner before the Winter Informal. Wonder how the gang tasted?

Among the patrons and patronesses present at the dance were Mr. and Mrs. Claude G. Bannick, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Ashmore, Mr. Henry E. Bernier.

And along the sidelines during the intermission we found Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dodge, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Perry, and Miss Doreen Snowden, all of whom insisted it was a grand affair.

Alumni glimpsed while dancing were Howard Sylvester, Henry Ivers, Bill Cannon, John Hoban, and Harold Malone.

Marion McCullough, a senior from Holy Names Academy, deserves a word of praise and thanks for her clever singing at the Winter Informal.

The Student Observer

By Wendel Jahn

Next Monday, the Dramatic Society presents its February offering, "What Happened to Jones?" I know the play and direction are good and I hope the players are. Nothing is so discouraging as playing to a half-empty house, however, so let's give them every chance to make good by packing the hall.

Any profit from the play goes right back to the students through the Athletic Fund, so we have everything to gain and nothing to lose by our enthusiastic support. Remember, baseball season will soon be here.

Something has to be done about my fan mail. No one objects to my truisms, no one offers to "guest-conduct" the column for me, and I am beginning to suspect that no one reads it. Maybe if I shave off my—

Fellow students, I am pleading for criticism. Let the grapefruit fall where they may.

* * *

The Winter Informal, in spite of the pessimists, proved both profitable and pleasurable. Now students are talking of a more exclusive, if not so "doggy," program dance, right after Easter.

All in favor speak to Wendel Shay. All opposed speak to me.

Coach, team, and spectators took away one thought from the basketball game with Seattle Pacific College three weeks ago. Defeat on the floor had been ours, but what sweet defeat. Rarely if ever before have we been shown such a display of sportsmanship, courtesy, and good will as was shown us by the team and students of Seattle Pacific College.

Next Saturday we play Seattle Pacific on our own floor. Then we will be given opportunity to show that we, too, are possessed of the true spirit of athletic competition to an eminent degree. Let's turn out en masse, and give the visitors a reception worthy of the one they gave us.

That Emmet Freely held the bag at our Winter Informal like a veritable Silas Marner . . . That everybody from school was there . . . That blue serge suits are all the go with young men this season . . . That the new Plymouths make fine props for dance-wear bones . . . That free checking is a great drawing card . . . That we have several aspiring stage-hands and lighting experts among us.

Spectator Reporter Granted Interview With Hank Bernier

By John Geis

Feeling that the student body should be more intimately acquainted with the man who guides the destiny of its basketball team, this reporter sought and was granted an interview with Hank Bernier, coach of the Seattle College basketball team.

Hank Bernier

The reporter found the coach a pleasant-appearing, modest, quiet young man of 26 years, just returning from the floor after a practice scrimmage, and from him gleaned the following facts:

Coch Bernier was born in Seattle on November 9, 1907, and has been a resident here ever since. He attended Garfield High where he played football and basketball. In 1928, after a lapse of two years, he resumed his studies at Gonzaga, where he was under the supervision of Rev. Daniel Reidy, S.J., now a member of our faculty, but then president of Gonzaga University. Asked about the coach last week, Father Reidy recalled the time when he had Hank on the carpet because he went home for Christmas before the quarter was completed.

At Gonzaga, Hank played basketball and football in each of his four years there. In his senior year, he made the All-Coast first team and received All-American mention. He was also awarded the Louis Barrett Inspirational Medal, the highest athletic honor the University can offer. He played in the East-West Shrine game on January 1, 1932.

Since graduating in June, 1932, Coach Bernier has been playing football for the West Seattle Athletic Club. This is his first coaching experience and he says he likes it fine.

SPORTS

COLLEGE HOOPERS MEET FALCON TEAM SATURDAY

The Seattle College Maroon is out to clip the Seattle Pacific Falcon's wings next Saturday night when the two teams meet in the return game of their home and home series to be played at O'Dea Gymnasium. Still smarting from the 45-30 setback administered to them in their last game, the Collegians have been working hard in turnouts this week to round themselves into form to avenge the defeat.

Though badly outplayed in the last half of the previous game, the squad feels capable of reversing the decision in this encounter as they consider themselves to have been handicapped by the strangeness of the Falcon's floor.

Coch Wes Bratton of the Pacific team will probably start the lineup which has been so successful in their last few games. This will find Lewis and Brown at forwards, Boyd and Millikan at guards, and Axelsson at center.

Bernier's starting lineup will probably consist of Finn and Rothstein at forwards, Hurley and Conyne at guards, and Olmer at center.

in the life of the school, he says:

"Through my several years of experience participating in athletics, I find that the more enthusiastic and loyal the student body is toward its athletic teams, the more conscientious and spirited are those endeavoring to bring to outsiders the name and traditions of their school by taking part in the athletics."

Grays Harbor Takes Another From Maroon Hoopers, 25-14

A fast Grays Harbor quintet made it two in a row over the Seattle College hoopsters last Saturday night in the second and last game of a home and home series, played at Aberdeen. The final score stood at 25-14 for the Jaysees.

Getting off to a slow start, the Maroon was able to garner only one field goal and three free throws in the first half, while the Harbor five reaped 18 points. Coming back in the second half, however, the Seattle boys showed a few good streaks and scored nine points while the Jaysees were picking seven.

Berg, Grays Harbor's big center, Jeffry, and Peterson were the sparks of the Grays Harbor quintet, Peterson, especially, playing a good defensive game. Jeffry bagged 11 points, while Berg hit the hoop for 9. Hurley, Olmer, and Finn stood out for the College.

Mothers Launch Plans For Lenten Bridge - Luncheons

Decision to launch a series of Lenten bridge-luncheons at the homes of the mothers, was reached at a meeting of the Mothers' Club at the college building last Thursday.

The first of the series will be given at the home of Mrs. J. L. O'Callaghan, 627 35th Ave. N.E., on February 21, at 1:00 p.m. Admission will be 50 cents per person.

Assumption Will Hold Social

Miss Ruth Wegner, extension student, early this week issued an invitation to all Seattle College students to attend a social to be given by the Assumption Parish, on February 13, at the Knights of Columbus hall. The upstairs will be devoted to cards, and the downstairs ballroom to dancing. A trip to California, via boat, will be the main door prize, according to Miss Wegner.

Get Going, Glee Clubbers!

Cries of mortal agony shall ere long resound throughout these ancient and honored corridors. Rest assured however they will not be what they seem but rather the gallant attempts of a gleeful group to tell the world about their glee.

Talent (?) of all kinds is turning out in answer to the clarion call. Soon they will be "washing elephants" in every classroom and peeling "John Pearl" round the good old water fountain. Better join in on the chorus boys, for "good fellows are getting together" and giving every evidence of being anywhere but "asleep in the deep."

Alumni News

We have heard many speeches in the past, but few can compare with Brother O'Connell's discourse at the Alumni meeting last Sunday. The principal of O'Dea High School gave his audience a clear insight into the political situation of modern Ireland with an unusual ease and fluency.

This meeting held last Sunday can be classed with the best ever held by the Alumni Association. If the members of the organization can continue with their splendid showings at these monthly breakfasts, it won't be long before a still more powerful group will continue to carry on the work for the betterment of Seattle College.

And here is another alumna who has made good: Dr. Raymond Zech, a former College student, who was recently elected president of the King County Medical Association.

Heard about the Winter Informal:

Henry Ivers: "The dance was nothing less than marvelous."

Tom Duffy: "The college should be proud of such an elegant social."

Bob Flajole: "The best dance in all the school's history."

Bernie Monahan: "I can't wait until another."

And Walt Scott, John Hoban, Jim Bradley, and others had nothing but pleasant adjectives to describe the successful affair.

Young Ladies Card Party Proves Highly Successful

Measuring up in every detail with the successful undertakings of the past, the young ladies of Seattle College with the helpful aid of the Mother's Club, sponsored a highly profitable card party and social last Monday evening.

The party began promptly at 8:15 p.m. when contract, auction, and whist games were in progress. The numbered tables were drawn and the highest scorers at each received a handsome prize.

Preceding the awarding of prizes, the young people enjoyed a social hour with music furnished by a radio loaned by Hopper-Kelly music store. Coffee and cake were then served.

Miss Mary Jo Conley, chairman of the affair, announced that the money taken in would be used for the furnishing of the young ladies' study hall.
